

May 19, 2011

To Whom This May Concern,

Last January, the roof on St. James Catholic Church (1311 Oneida St., Denver, Co 80220) developed a leak. After meeting with representatives from several roofing companies, we chose Colorado Weather Coatings LLC to do the work. Rich Rogers, the owner, insisted that only part of the roof needed replacement, unlike some of the other representatives, and that the rest could be repaired and would last a long time. Not only did Rich have the best price, but he was wonderful to work with.

After winning the bid, Rich and his crew worked around our church-services schedule. And when he and his crew were on the job, we couldn't even tell. They were quiet, professional, and the grounds around the church were always kept clear of debris. Many times, during the work, Rich invited me up on the roof to see how they were doing. I was really impressed. Colorado Weather Coatings' work is first class, and I'm very hard to please.

When all was said and done, we received a 5 year no leak warranty--not just on the small areas that were replaced, but on the entire roof! And in October of last year, I had the opportunity to test the warranty. I called Rich regarding a leak and he came right away. Rich found the cause, but the leak wasn't from the roof, it was from a roof top HVAC unit. Not only did he suggest a repair method, he didn't charge a penny to come all the way from Broomfield to diagnose the problem.

If you want a quality repair, a meaningful warranty, professional service, and the best price, then Rich Rogers and Colorado Weather Coatings LLC is most definitely the way to go. I surely will call them for all of our future roofing needs.

Sincerely,

Gerry Athman

St. James Catholic Church and School Facilities Manager